Summer 2018

“Andreas J. Adam is the top grower-producer in Dhron and one of the best in the Mosel Valley.”

- Lars Carlsberg, Mosel Wine, www.larscarlberg.com

Andreas Adam produced his first vintage in 2000 after completing his studies at Geisenheim and working for renowned Mosel wineries including Heymann-Lowenstein and Van Volxem. His grandfather owned vineyards in Dhron but his parents decided not to become winemakers. Andreas now owns a total of 4.5ha in the Hofberg vineyard in Dhron and in the prestigious and vertiginous Piesporter Goldtropfchen. Dhron is the name of the village and also a small tributary that flows into the Mosel from the Hunsbruck Hills. Winds from these hills help the grapes retain acidity which is useful in warmer years. The slate soils ensure plenty of classic mineral flavours in the wines.

Over the past 17 years Andreas has built a reputation as one of the finest winemakers in the Mosel, capable of producing wines in every style from dry to sweet. His wines combine an admirable intensity with pure, precise definition.

Stephan Reinhardt in Robert Parker's Wine Advocate (Feb 2015)

“Andreas Johannes Adam is a younger top name in the Mosel. Only insiders know about the outstanding qualities of Adam's Rieslings of which the 2013s are among the finest I have tasted for this report. Regarding clarity, balance, lightness, finesse and elegance, but also the confident style of his 2013s, Adam is already very close to the icon producers of the Mosel-Saar-Ruwer. Rarely have I seen a producer like him excelling in all categories from dry to sweet.”
